

FILED

JUL 22 2003

CCM

LARRY W. PROPPES, CLERK
CHARLESTON, SC

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF SOUTH CAROLINA
AIKEN DIVISION

DIRECTV, INC., a California ) corporation, )
 )
Plaintiff, )
 )
-versus- )
 )
ANTHONY MAXTED, CHRISTOPHER ) BARNES, AND CRAIG BAILEY, )
 )
Defendants. )

C. A. No. 1:02-3192-18

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

ENTERED
7-23-03

This action alleging damages and seeking relief pursuant to the Communications Act of 1934, 47 U.S.C. 151 et. seq., as amended by the Telecommunications Act of 1996, 47 U.S.C. § 605, and provisions of the Electronic Communications Privacy Act of 1986, as amended, 18 U.S.C. § 2511, et. seq., among other causes of action which are no longer relevant<sup>1</sup>, was brought by DIRECTV, Inc., a California corporation in the business of selling television programming via satellite transmission. The defendants are individuals whose names appear on the shipping records of dealers of signal pirating devices and whom the plaintiff asserts have stolen their satellite transmissions. The defendants Barnes and Bailey have moved for summary judgment asserting that there is no evidence that the defendants received

---

<sup>1</sup> The only real remaining cause of action is under 47 U.S.C. § 605. The plaintiff has conceded that its other allegations are not viable. Specifically the common law conversion cause of action fails because there is not proof of actual damages, and the claims under § 2512 fail because the section does not provide for private rights of action.

or assisted others in receiving DIRECTV's satellite transmission of television programming without authorization in violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605(a).

The pertinent portions of the United States Code of Laws read as follows:

Title 47

§ 605. Unauthorized publication or use of communications

(a) Practices prohibited

Except as authorized by chapter 119, Title 18, no person receiving, assisting in receiving, transmitting, or assisting in transmitting, any interstate or foreign communication by wire or radio shall divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning thereof, except through authorized channels of transmission or reception, (1) to any person other than the addressee, his agent, or attorney,

*****

(3) (A) Any person aggrieved by any violation of subsection (a) of this section or paragraph (4) of this subsection may bring a civil action in a United States district court or in any other court of competent jurisdiction.

(B) The court--

(i) may grant temporary and final injunctions on such terms as it may deem reasonable to prevent or restrain violations of subsection (a) of this section;

(ii) may award damages as described in subparagraph (C); and

(iii) shall direct the recovery of full costs, including awarding reasonable attorneys' fees to an aggrieved party who prevails.

(C) (i) Damages awarded by any court under this section shall be computed, at the election of the aggrieved party, in accordance with either of the following subclauses;

(I) the party aggrieved may recover the actual damages suffered by him as a result of the violation and any profits of the violator that are attributable to the violation which are not taken into account in computing the actual damages; in determining the violator's profits, the party aggrieved shall be required to prove only the violator's gross revenue, and the violator shall be required to prove his deductible expenses and the elements of profit attributable to factors other than the violation; or

(II) the party aggrieved may recover an award of statutory damages for each violation of subsection (a) of this section involved in the action in a sum of not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000, as the court considers just . . . .

(ii) In any case in which the court finds that the violation was committed willfully and for purposes of direct or indirect commercial advantage or private financial gain, the court in its discretion may increase the award of damages, whether actual or statutory, by an amount of not more than $100,000 for each violation of subsection (a) of this section.

(iii) In any case where the court finds that the violator was not aware and had no reason to believe that his acts constituted a violation of this section, the court in its discretion may reduce the award of damages to a sum of not less than $250.

Title 18

§ 2511. Interception and disclosure of wire, oral, or electronic communications prohibited

(1) Except as otherwise specifically provided in this chapter any person who--

(a) intentionally intercepts, endeavors to intercept, or procures any other person to intercept or endeavor to intercept, any wire, oral, or electronic communication;

(b) intentionally uses, endeavors to use, or procures any other person to use or endeavor to use any electronic, mechanical, or other device to intercept any oral communication when--

(i) such device is affixed to, or otherwise transmits a signal through, a wire, cable, or other like connection used in wire communication; or

(ii) such device transmits communications by radio, or interferes with the transmission of such communication; or

(iii) such person knows, or has reason to know, that such device or any component thereof has been sent through the mail or transported in interstate or foreign commerce; or

(iv) such use or endeavor to use (A) takes place on the premises of any business or other commercial establishment the operations of which affect interstate or foreign commerce; or shall be punished as provided in subsection (4) or shall be subject to suit as provided in subsection (5).

*****

§ 2520.

(a) In general.--Except as provided in section 2511(2)(a)(ii), any person whose wire, oral, or electronic communication is intercepted, disclosed, or intentionally used in violation of this chapter may in a civil action recover from the person or entity, other than the United States, which engaged in that violation such relief as may be appropriate.

(b) Relief.--In an action under this section, appropriate relief includes--

- (1) such preliminary and other equitable or declaratory relief as may be appropriate;
- (2) damages under subsection (c) and punitive damages in appropriate cases; and
- (3) a reasonable attorney's fee and other litigation costs reasonably incurred.

(c) Computation of damages.--(1) In an action under this section, if the conduct in violation of this chapter is the private viewing of a private satellite video communication that is not scrambled or encrypted or if the communication is a radio communication that is transmitted on frequencies allocated under subpart D of part 74 of the rules of the Federal Communications Commission that is not scrambled or encrypted and the conduct is not for a tortious or illegal purpose or for purposes of direct or indirect commercial advantage or private commercial gain, then the court shall assess damages as follows:
(A) If the person who engaged in that conduct has not previously been enjoined under section 2511(5) and has not been found liable in a prior civil action under this section, the court shall assess the greater of the sum of actual damages suffered by the plaintiff, or statutory damages of not less than $50 and not more than $500.

(B) If, on one prior occasion, the person who engaged in that conduct has been enjoined under section 2511(5) or has been found liable in a civil action under this section, the court shall assess the greater of the sum of actual damages suffered by the plaintiff, or statutory damages of not less than $100 and not more than $1000.

(2) In any other action under this section, the court may assess as damages whichever is the greater of--

(A) the sum of the actual damages suffered by the plaintiff and any profits made by the violator as a result of the violation; or

(B) statutory damages of whichever is the greater of $100 a day for each day of violation or $10,000.

Summary Judgment Standard

Pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(c), a district court must enter judgment against a party who, "after adequate time for discovery ... fails to make a showing sufficient to establish the existence of an element essential to that party's case, and on which that party will bear the burden of proof at trial." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322, 106 S.Ct. 2548, 2552 (1986). Where "there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and ... the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law," entry of summary judgment is mandated. Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(c). To avoid summary judgment on a defendant's motion, a plaintiff must produce evidence creating a genuine issue of material fact. "The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the plaintiff's position will be insufficient; there must be evidence on which the jury could reasonably find for the plaintiff." Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 252, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2512 (1986). In determining whether a genuine issue of material fact is in dispute, "[t]he evidence of the nonmovant is to be believed, and all justifiable inferences are to be drawn in his favor." Anderson, at 255, 106 S.Ct. at 2513-14.

FACTS

The facts, either uncontested or taken in the light most favorable to the plaintiff as the non-moving party, and all reasonable inferences therefrom, to the extent supported by the record, are as follow.

Defendant Barnes never subscribed to DIRECTV service and denies ever intercepting DIRECTV signals by the use of any device or assisting anyone to intercept the signals. (Hodge Aff.).

Defendant Bailey, on the other hand, subscribed to DIRECTV services, but denies that he illegally intercepted signals from DIRECTV or assisted anyone to intercept such signals.

The plaintiff has also submitted what appears to be e-mails indicating that the defendants' credit cards were used to purchase devices which assist in circumventing DIRECTV's security system. (Izadshenas Aff.).

DISCUSSION

The issue before the court is whether there is a genuine issue of material fact as to whether the plaintiff's "wire, oral, or electronic communication [was] intercepted, disclosed, or intentionally used..." in violation of the Electronic Communications Privacy Act by the defendants, 18 U.S.C. § 2520, or whether either of the defendants "receiving, assisting in receiving, transmitting, or assisting in transmitting, any interstate or foreign communication by wire or radio [did] divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning thereof, except through authorized channels of transmission or reception." 47 U.S.C. § 605.

The plaintiff's case is a circumstantial one, but to be sure, liability may be established by circumstantial evidence. Still the evidence must be more than a suspicion or conjecture to justify submission to the jury. Here the adequately supported motion for summary judgment by the defendants shifted to the plaintiff's the responsibility to produce facts, as distinguished from allegations, sufficient to show that it will be able to prove its claim at trial.

Unfortunately for the plaintiff the submission fails to show a genuine issue of material fact for resolution by a fact finder.

The evidence as to Barnes and Bailey simply fails as a matter of law.

The principal fact upon which the plaintiff opposes summary judgment is the claim that the defendants purchased a device to aid in circumventing DIRECTV's security. However, there is no recognizable evidence of record to support that claim, and the only information of record are unverified e-mails.

Rule 56(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides,

(e) FORM OF AFFIDAVITS; FURTHER TESTIMONY; DEFENSE REQUIRED.

Supporting and opposing affidavits shall be made on personal knowledge, shall set forth such facts as would be admissible in evidence, and shall show affirmatively that the affiant is competent to testify to the matters stated therein. Sworn or certified copies of all papers or parts thereof referred to in an affidavit shall be attached thereto or served therewith. The court may permit affidavits to be supplemented or opposed by depositions, answers to interrogatories, or further affidavits. When a motion for summary judgment is made and supported as provided in this rule, an adverse party may not rest upon the mere allegations or denials of the adverse party's pleading, but the adverse party's response, by affidavits or as otherwise provided in this rule, must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial. If the adverse party does not so respond, summary judgment, if appropriate, shall be entered against the adverse party.

Here there is no affidavit accompanying the proffered e-mails and the e-mails themselves are not sworn to or certified. The e-mails do not rise to the level of evidentiary quality, and there is no explanation as to why.<sup>2</sup> Thus the e-mails may not be used to withstand summary judgment, and there is nothing else linking the defendants to any causes of action claimed by the plaintiff.

---

<sup>2</sup>On June 23, 2003, at a hearing on Directv, Inc.v. Bill Collins, Robbie Free, David Hurst, Derrick Hodge, Elijah Cromedy, Gail Ferguson, Steve Franks, Shirley W. Nichols, Richard Comedy,

Furthermore, even if the e-mails were of evidentiary quality, the evidence at trial as to Barnes and Bailey would simply be that they purchased an electronic device which may be used to assist in circumventing DIRECTV's security system. They deny using the devices for that purpose or assisting anyone to use them for that purpose. There is no other evidence of record with regard to Barnes. There is no evidence he had any access to the signals of DIRECTV, such as satellite dish on his house; no evidence he had any other equipment for receiving DIRECTV signals; no evidence he ever subscribed to DIRECTV, and no evidence he was assisting anyone else. This circumstantial evidence is not sufficient to put Barnes' denial in dispute. The evidence with regard to Bailey is slightly better for the plaintiff in that he at one time subscribed to DIRECTV, but still there is no evidence that he continues to have any access to the signals of DIRECTV, such as satellite dish on his house; no evidence he continues to have equipment for receiving DIRECTV signals, and no evidence he is assisting others.

---

Jack Goynes, C. A. No. 2:02-3041-18, the plaintiff conceded that an unverified receipt or e-mail was insufficient to withstand summary judgment with regard to Shirley W. Nichols. Still they persist in presenting such unverified evidence in opposition to summary judgment without explanation.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated above, finding that the defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law, it is recommended that this court enter an Order granting their motions for summary judgement.

Respectfully Submitted,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Robert S. Carr". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large, prominent "C" at the end.

Robert S. Carr
United States Magistrate Judge

Charleston, South Carolina

July 22, 2003